CHRISTMAS

BENEATH THE MISTLETOE

By ERSKINE DEPOT.
[Copyright, 1903, by American Trade Association.]

 BLISSFULNESS maid, divine
by fair,
Stopped, thoughtless
'neath the mistletoe
Hung high above the carpet square,
While out of door fell Sorey snow.
Heigho! Heigho!
Surprised beneath the mistletoe!

 HE did not know she was so near
 The kiss provoking misticism.
 The laugh upon the cheek-seller
 Was delectably fixed, but not too low.
 Oh, no! Oh, no!
 In ambush was the mischief.

 MCE in the neck and fairly caught,
 She showed no sudden haste to go.
 Two victims with a single thought
 Are hewn beneath the mistletoe.
 Just so! Just so!
 The courage-giving mistletoe!

 HER cheeks suffused a rosy red
 That shamed the holly's bright glow
 She hid aloft her charming head,
 The lawful king did not forego,
 And, lo! And, lo!
 That king beneath the mistletoe!

The Deacons Christmas Eve
- BY GERALD - TRIPLE -

JOURNAL OF THE AMERICAN CHINESE ASSOCIATION

This very night they're coming home.
Their faces will appear
Once more around the Yuletide feast,
Our sons and daughters dear.
Then there'll be all the babies, too,
To jolt upon my knee
And make our big, old fashioned house
A scene of revelry.

The hemlock wreaths hang on the wall.
That spray of mistletoe
Recalls, old dear, our sparkling days,
Some fifty years ago.
(Then first I kissed you underneath
The bough of fateful pearie.
I seem to see you once again,
The sweetest of all girls.

The pantry shelves are loaded down
With every kind of cake
And pies of mince and gumpkin such
As only you can make.
Beyond the close shut parlor door
An angel bright and fair
Is looking down upon a tree
That stands all ready there.

Put up your knitting, mother, dear.
The tinkle of the bells
Across the snow clad upper road
In welcome warning swirls,
For here are Dick and Jack and Jess
And Molly, Tom and Sue
And all the merry, dimpled, cute,
Mischievous youngsters too!

NEW SMYRNA is situated fifteen miles south of Daytona and is an ideal spot reached from Daytona by a hard surface road winding through one of the most picturesque parts of Florida.

With its ancient ruins dating back to a time when the history of man runneth not, interlaced with wires of the modern telegraph and telephone, its miles of shell streets as hard and smooth as a floor and over-arched by hoary forest giants that grew in state-ly grandeur during the lapse of by-gone centuries, New Smyrna is truly a place of romance and rest.

All nature here is very inviting to the tourist and pleasure-seeker. Here too is to be found the best fishing and hunting in the State of Florida.

The people are thrifty, the business men enterprising, and all unite in extending the welcome hand of hospitality to strangers. There are five church edifices for white people and an equal number for the colored population; the town has an excellent high school, a splendid public library, and up-to-date business houses.

There are any number of pretty homes for the permanent population, which numbers close to 2,000, and some very fine winter residences. There are good hotels and boarding houses where you can find accommodations to meet your requirements.

Adjoining New Smyrna is as fine a section of vegetable land as can be found anywhere. This land has been divided into small farms which can be bought at reasonable prices. Some of the finest celery grown in the State is raised on this land. All other vegetables grow in abundance, and here, too, is the home of the famous Indian River oranges.

New Smyrna has no bonded indebtedness and the tax levy is low. A point that no tourist should fail to visit is the ruins of the Old Spanish Mission which stand somber and alone about one and a quarter miles southwest of New Smyrna. A good road leads to the place and the trip can be easily made by an automobile.

Silent, in the great pine flats by the margin of the forest, is this place of pilgrimage for the pious; this rendezvous for the picnicker. The ruins are extensive, and while there is no authentic history of their origin, it is presumed that the Mission was built by the Franciscans in the days when the once powerful Kingdom of Spain first planted its flag upon what is now American soil. It was built of coquina, the roof being of the same material, cut into thin slabs and covered with cement plaster. Extensive gardens surrounded it, which were enclosed by a stone wall, portions of which still remain. Visitors usually come in parties merry and curious but the spell of the place soon falls upon them and they separate to sit alone, silent and meditative, under the arches or beside the ancient well.

CORONADO
Is situated on the peninsula opposite New Smyrna and is connected by a good road and bridge over the deep current of Indian River. Here you can put aside your conventional garb, breathe in large and deep the salty tonic of the sea and enjoy yourself to your heart's content with rod and reel in row or sail boat or in the ocean surf a short half-mile away. The great varieties of fish inhabiting the river and lagoon pass through the channel from the sea beneath the bridge. From verandas, upper balconies and windows you behold the magnificent river, the distant lagoons and islands, the forest-covered peninsula and the vast reaches of the Atlantic Ocean.

HAWKS PARK
A pretty village located along the ridge above the Indian River two and one-half miles south of New Smyrna and connected with fine shell roads. There is the appearance of newness, comfort and seclusion about the place which stamps it as the abode of people who come here to enjoy the blessings of outdoor life away from places where crowds are apt to gather.

PORT ORANGE, FLA.

ORMOND is five miles north of Daytona, located on the western bank of the Halifax River. The location of the town permits of good drainage and perfect sanitation; the elevation is superb and ideal for winter homes. A wide bridge connects Ormond with Ormond Beach.

Many fine residences are maintained on either side of the river, most of them embellished with sub-tropical flora and shrubbery, besides thrifty orange and other citrus fruit trees.

The town is very cosmopolitan, has an excellent graded school, several churches, a fine public library, up-to-date places of business and comfortable and convenient hotels and boarding houses.

Ormond has many of the Florida attractions—fine fruit, good fishing, excellent automobilism, safe boating, salubrious climate and pleasant walks and drives.

At Ormond Beach is located the large Hotel Ormond, and its lesser sister, Bretton Inn. The former occupies a position overlooking the Halifax River, while the latter has as its outlook the magnificent beach and the broad Atlantic.

The walks in all directions are particularly attractive, and the arbors, shady and inviting spots and romantic nooks are crowded with rustic seats which are mute invitations to enter into the enjoyment thereof.

Besides the broad, smooth ocean beach there are many drives for carriage or automobile—long drives and short drives; drives through groves of golden oranges; drives through dense tropical forests to Spanish ruins; drives to the ancient Causeway built by the slaves of planters of long ago, and drives to the plantations of hospitable settlers, whose places are replete with the interest of Southern fruits and flowers.

One of these interesting plantations is Number Nine, located on the peninsula, five miles north of the Hotel Ormond. Here you see a fine orange grove, together with great varieties of other sub-tropical fruits and flowers.

Five miles further on you come to Moundgrove, one of the finest orange groves in this section of Florida. Moundgrove is on the headwaters of the Halifax River and is amid pretty surroundings. The place is reached by a good road [passing Number Nine] and is a drive all tourists may enjoy.

PORT ORANGE is a pretty little village situated five miles south of Daytona on the Daytona-New Smyrna hard-surface road, the scenic highway of the East Coast. The town is located on the Halifax River, over which spans a bridge from the town to the peninsula opposite.

The town is well laid out and has many pretty homes owned and occupied by residents and winter tourists. It has several churches, one of the best graded schools in Volusia county, two general stores, a real estate agency and two or three hotels.

A large number of tourists and winter residents make Port Orange winter headquarters, one of the several attractions being the excellent fishing. Port Orange is in the orange belt and a number of very fine citrus groves are nearby, where oranges, tangerines and grape-fruit hang in profusion. Some of the best trucking land in the State is to be found thereabout and excellent crops are raised.

West of Port Orange a short distance are the remains of the old Dunlawton sugar mill, a spot that is visited every year by hundreds of tourists. At one time all the country west of Port Orange, surrounding the old mill, was a vast sugar-cane and indigo plantation. The mill was operated extensively in those days but has been in disuse for thirty or forty years.

A pretty automobile or carriage drive from Daytona is via the ocean beach to the approach of the Port Orange bridge, across the bridge and then passing through Port Orange to the ruins of the celebrated old sugar mill, returning to Daytona by the road on the mainland. This drive affords a very pleasing variety of scenery.

LAKE HELEN

Surrounded by several pretty lakes and guarded by lofty pine trees is Lake Helen, a winter resort of no little importance. Camp Cassadaga, a spiritualistic camp-ground is situated near Lake Helen and at this place several hundred people make winter headquarters. A large lumber mill and the largest brick plant in the South are located at Lake Helen.

ORANGE CITY

The principal attraction around Orange City is the many handsome golden orange groves. The town is supplied with water said to be the purest in the world, another attraction to visitors. It is at Orange City that passengers over the Florida East Coast Ry. transfer to carriages and drive to Deland. The town is surrounded by land peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of citrus fruits.

DELAND, the county seat of Volusia County, is situated 23 miles southwest of Daytona and is reached from the latter city by an excellent hard-surface road recently constructed.

At Deland is located the John B. Stetson University, one of the leading educational institutions of the South. Because of the interest in matters educational Deland is known as "The Athens of Florida."

Stetson University has a faculty of 50 professors and instructors. There are over $400,000 in buildings and equipment; nearly $300,000 endowment; a Carnegie Library alone representing an investment in building, endowment and books, of more than $120,000. The library is the United States Government depository for the State of Florida, and contains over 15,000 volumes. Science Hall, one of the newest of 16 buildings, with its furnishings, represents an outlay of $60,000. Elizabeth Hall is one of the most beautiful college buildings in the South.

The city has a population of about 3,500, with a thickly settled country adjacent. Deland proper is five miles east of the St. Johns River, on the high, rolling pine land of the great "Orange Ridge" of Florida.

The predominating products are oranges and grapefruit, the estimated crop from this vicinity being over 300,000 boxes this year. Grapes, peaches, pears, Japan persimmons, plums, pecans, guavas, strawberries and other fruits are grown in plenty.

In the way of public improvements are many miles of fine shell roads, an excellent high school, electric lights, a system of waterworks that is owned and operated by the city, supplying the purest water at little cost.

Nine houses of worship testify that Deland is a church-going community. Baptists, Episcopalians, Methodists (Northern and Southern), Presbyterians, Christians and Catholics, besides colored Baptists and Methodists, are represented.

The graded school offers a ten years' course, and the building which it occupies is newly furnished throughout, and is one of the most commodious and best equipped public schools in the State.

The trip from Daytona to Deland is made by automobile in a little over an hour, and there are many pretty drives in the vicinity of the county site. A good road leads to DeLeon Springs, five miles, a historic spot, where 60,000 gallons of water bubble from the earth every minute.

From Deland automobiles go south to Osteen, 18 miles, on shell and marl roads; the St. Johns is crossed by ferry near Osteen and cars can then continue to Sanford and Orlando by hard road. There is a shell road from Deland to Orange City, five miles, and a good road from Deland to Lake Helen, a like distance.

PROGRAMS AT THE CHURCHES

The Baptist and Methodist Sunday Schools had a really pretty program last night for their Christmas observances at the First Baptist church and the M. E. Epworth Hall, respectively.

These programs included nearly all of the student body of the schools and, consequently, are too lengthy to publish, but they culled their material in meeting the bright anticipation of the children for whom they were planned, and gave their parents and friends a pleasant evening with them.

The trees were loaded with dainty gifts for the children—presents, evergreen and Santa Claus was just as new as to the first child of the first year, and played the usual game of hide-and-seek in the district of the children.

The Christmas observance was bright and attractive and gave the proper setting for the season.

The Sunday School of the Epworth Church also had a very nice program and the children were sent home happy.

THE DAYTONA DAILY NEWS

Published every evening, except Sunday, from December 1 to April 1, by THE GAZETTE-NEWS CO., T. E. FITZGERALD, Editor-Manager, C. S. HARRIS, City Editor, Geo. F. CROCCO, Superintendent.

Entered as second-class matter December 1, 1900, at the post office at Daytona, Florida, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

VIRGINIA MILLIMAN COMPANY

TO GIVE CHRISTMAS MATINEE.

Have you secured your seats for "The Girl from Chilli" for today's matinee performance. If not, you will miss one of the treats of your life for it is without doubt the merriest play ever written. There is nothing but fun from the rise to the fall of the curtain. The story is an amusing one in three acts. The Girl from Chilli is Juanita Hawkins, whose father, a man of wealth, is spending the summer with his friend, Robert Lightheart. Juanita is madly infatuated with Harry Doomsby, who is Lightheart's chum. Doomsby wishes to get rid of the Chilli girl for he is to marry another. For the purpose of getting away from her, he is reported dead and finally emerges as an Indian chief, much to the astonishment of the woman in the play and the amusement of the audience. Miss Milliman, as the Girl from Chilli, gave as clever an interpretation of the Spanish type as one would wish to see. She kept the audience in convulsions of laughter with her wild, frantic portrayal of the quick tempered Girl from Chilli.

See this play today at the matinee at 3:00 p. m.

Tonight, another excellent bill—in vaudeville acts, and Confusion.

ALDERMAN HEYMANN SAYS

HE'D SPURN THE $400.

WILL RUN FOR MAYOR IF HE IS URGED TO DO SO PROVIDING—

Alderman Simon Heymann says that in considering whether or not he will become a candidate for mayor of Daytona in the February election, the little plum of four hundred simoleons which is attached to the mayoralty chair is not taken into consideration. "In fact," said Mr. Heymann to the Daily News last night, "should I become a candidate and be elected I will give the salary to ecclesiastical and eleemosynary institutions. I would give $100 to the colored Baptist church which was recently burned by Mrs. Bethune's school and the other $300 to two white institutions."

Mr. Heymann says he will enter the race if only M. H. Zuber and the present incumbent, E. W. Greene, are candidates, as he feels that he can win over them. Should Henry T. Titus become a candidate, however, Mr. Heymann will "chuck" his aspirations in a bucket of cold water.

No new timber has been announced in the last few days, although friends of Ernest Mills are urging him to become a candidate. Several requests have been made of E. F. Oates, that he allow his name to be placed on the ballot.

Her Vacation.

Little Mary looked at the reward which had been given to her for the collection of plates with evident satisfaction and then looking close to her aunt, whispered, "How much are you going to give?"

Her aunt, holding her hand, displayed a quarter of a dollar.

"Oh," exclaimed Mary excitedly, "don't do it! It isn't worth it!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

"In most cases," said Uncle Eben, "what folks calls failure is simply losin' interest an' layin' down on de job."—Washington Star.

EVENTS SCHEDULED FOR

THE COMING WEEK.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 25.—In every section of the country, school teachers, college instructors, scientist and others interested in educational work and the development of learning, will take advantage of the Christmas holidays to assemble in annual conference for the exchange of ideas and the discussion of topics of common interest.

The twenty-fifth anniversary meeting of the American Historical and American Economic associations will attract to New York a distinguished gathering of learned men of all branches of science from the United States, Canada and Europe. President Taft has accepted an invitation to address the public session in Carnegie Hall Monday night.

At the same time there will assemble in Boston another great gathering of scholars to attend the annual meeting of the American Association for the advancement of Science. In conjunction with this gathering there will be held meetings of the American Mathematical Society, American Society of Naturalists, Association of American Geographers and numerous other scientific and learned bodies.

In Charlotte, N. C., the Southern Educational Association, the second largest of its kind in the country, will begin its annual meeting Tuesday and continue in session four days.

The trial of Mrs. Jeanette Stewart Ford, charged with attempting to blackmail Charles L. Warren, treasurer of the Big Four railroad, who, it is alleged, stole $640,000 from the company, is scheduled to begin in Cincinnati.

In the United States Court at Boise, Idaho, the first of a series of alleged land fraud trials is on the docket for next Monday.

Interest attaches to the annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association, which is to be held in New York city Tuesday, from the fact that the association is expected to take steps for a rigid revision of the rules governing foot ball.

Wednesday will be observed throughout the British Empire as the centenary of the birth of William E. Gladstone, the "Great Commoner" which is given additional interest by the present political campaign in Great Britain involving issues with which the memory of Gladstone is particularly associated.

The Year's Toll of Prominent People in the Sporting World.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25—Death has thinned the ranks of distinguished figures in the world of sport to an unusual extent in the year now near its close. In nearly all branches of professional and amateur sports it has invaded high places, but the baseball world particularly has suffered heavy losses. The National League suffered the loss of its president, Harry C. Pulliam, and of the owners of three of the eight clubs comprising the circuit. The club owners who died during the year were Frank de Hass Robinson, of St. Louis; George Dovey, of Boston, and Israel Durham, who was credited with being the chief owner of the Philadelphia club.

Among others whose names were prominently associated with base ball were John Clarkson, who was one of the greatest pitchers in the history of the game; Frank G. Selee, for twelve years manager of the Boston Nationals and later manager of the Chicago Nationals; Charles H. Cushman, one of the organizers of the Western league and for several years manager of the Milwaukee club; Herman Long, whose career as a player covered many years in the major leagues; Dr. Maurice Powers, catcher for the Philadelphia American league team; Harry Lochead, who had played in big and little leagues; John V. B. Hatfield, of New York, one of the stars of a generation ago; Edward F. Leahy, once a well known catcher of the Philadelphia club; Charles R. ("King") Pittenger, a former American league pitcher; George Speer, a former catcher in Western league and American association clubs; Albert L. Moore, a fast New England league player of a decade ago; Frank Kornick, a Wisconsin-Illinois league player; Thomas Coater, of the Oshkosh team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league; Charles Pinckney, second baseman of the Dayton team in the Central league; Willie Hogg, pitcher on the Louisville American association club; Charles Dexter, first baseman for the New Orleans Southern league team; J. F. Cole, a veteran Chicago player of the '60s; George F. ("Foghorn") Miller, who had played in Pittsburgh, St. Louis and other cities; P. J. Quinn, who promoted the first uniformed baseball team ever taken out of Chicago; Maurice P. Danily, of Rochester, an old-time minor league umpire, and Cornelius J. McGinley, a former minor league player and for years an umpire in the Three I and Western leagues.

The mortality among turfmen and others identified with racing has also been great. Included in the list are Tim Murin, one of the best known racing men in America; Joel Fenner, a noted breeder of Mount Sterling, Ky.; in a 24-hour contest at the Brighton

George M. Webb, of Philadelphia, a well known trainer; Kirby Snow, known in race circles throughout the South; W. R. Letcher, secretary of the Kentucky Racing Association; Col. R. W. Simmons, of New Orleans, for many years a presiding judge; W. H. Sims, president of the International Fair Association of San Antonio; Clarence McDowell, of Baltimore, who had presided at many metropolitan tracks; Frank Cusack, one of the best known turf writers on the Pacific coast, and William Hayward and J. B. Wood, both of whom were noted jockeys.

During the year death removed from the world of pugilism such well known figures as Willus Britt, of San Francisco, who had managed Battling Nelson, Stanley Ketchel and other noted fighters, Eddie Conley, another old time lightweight pugilist of Cambridge, Mass.; Patsey O'Hara, another old-time fighter, who hailed from New England; Martin Snee, of Haverhill, Mass., who fought a number of good men in the lightweight division; "Mickey" Sears, still another New England fighter of considerable reputation, and James Kelly, who had trained and managed several prominent fighters, among the "Mysterious Billy" Smith.

A wider review takes in not a few prominent figures in other branches of sport. Among them may be mentioned George Price, the veteran oarsman of St. John, N. B., and a member of the celebrated Paris crew, which held the four-oared championship of the world; Capt. John Barr, one of the best yacht captains on the New England coast; Carlisle D. Graham, the swimmer who won fame by passing through the Niagara rapids; Charles F. Barker, of Boston, who was the champion checker player of the world for many years; Clarence H. Freeman, of Providence, who had also held the checker championship; Kreigh Collins, a former star tennis player; Edward McLaughlin, a noted authority on the game of billiards; Harry Bethune, of Cleveland, formerly a champion sprinter of the world; Herman I. Johnson, of Utica, former president of the National Curling Club of America; Eugene Delmar, of New York, one of the best known of American chess players; Harry Hess, of Nanticoke, Pa., and Charles W. Hart, of Cleveland, both trap shooters of national reputation; Dan Stuart and Al Smith, famous as stakeholders and promoters of sporting events; Hugh McLean, Parley Giles and Frank Ashton, who had attained wide fame as bicycle racers.

Among the automobile racing fatalities the most notable were those which resulted in the deaths of William A. Bourque, who was killed in a race on the new Indianapolis speedway, and Laurent Grosse, a French chauffeur, who met his death Beach motordome.

Of the numerous fatalities that attended the past foot ball season the deaths of Cadet Eugene A. Byrne, of the West Point military academy, Duke Tribble, of the Indiana State University eleven, and Roy Spyback, of the Haskell Indian Institute team attracted most attention.

Luella's Christmas Gift.

By ROBERT DONNELL.

"T was the funniest thing ever," said the bachelor boarder. "You see, Miss Luella and I are going to be married, so I can tell it. Miss Luella took a sudden fancy to hang up her stocking Christmas eve, just for the fun of it. She hung it below the mantel, setting a mouse trap on the turned over edge

"I FOUND NO INTRUDER," to hold it there. When she got up in the morning she ran to see if St. Nick had remembered her—and he had. "When she shrieked I grabbed one of my Indian exercise clubs, wrapped a quilt around me and rushed into her room to kill the burly burglar. She was still shrieking. I looked under the bed, in the clothes closet, every-

A REAL, LIVE CHRISTMAS PRESENT where, but found no intruder. I found him in the stocking. "I drowned him—in the washbowl. Then I took advantage of the occasion to tell Miss Luella that if she actually wanted a real live Christmas present she could have me."

A CHRISTMAS CONSERVE.

By ELIA STEPHENS.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Take oranges and lemons, too; Remove the juice and pulp And add the rinds, grated most fine Or by machine ground up.

Next put through the grinding machine Or chop in wooden bowl The walnuts and the raisins good And almonds, blanched when whole.

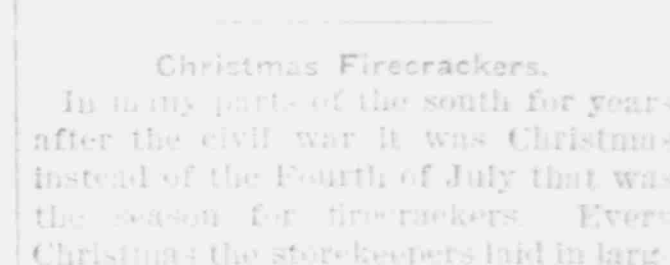

Dissolve the sugar in a pint Of excellent grape juice; Then add to it the other things And gradually reduce

By simmering all quite slowly down Till like a marmalade, Put into glasses, seal and place Within the pantry's shade.

With Christmas roast or toothsome game This conserve is delicious, Or thinly spread on buttered bread At tea time proves propitious.

Christmas Firecrackers. In many parts of the south for years after the civil war it was Christmas instead of the Fourth of July that was the season for firecrackers. Every Christmas the storekeepers laid in large supplies of firecrackers, and the small boy of that period felt sadly cheated by Santa Claus unless he found at least one of his stockings stuffed with bundles of the little red explosives. In those districts such a thing as a firecracker or the Fourth of July was unknown. Of late years, however, the firecracker has been restored to its proper place in family and community, and Christmas is no longer entirely to the liking of boys and the tearing of toy drums.

What's In a Name? Papa—Bey, what do you want for Christmas? Billy—I want a lolsled. Bobby—I want a billygoat. Papa—Suppose you swap.

Roses and Repentance

By V. A. WAYNE

Copyright, 1905, by American Press Association.

The sun shone warm upon the banks of the Chipela, upon the tall pines and the low bending dogwoods and upon the little cabin in the half acre clearing that was devoted to chicken raising and sweet potato growing.

There were odors of new growth in the air, the glint of fresh green among the foliage, and from a branch of the flowering dogwood a mocking bird was singing its delicious joy of the spring sunshine and flowers.

A white haired negro came slowly around the cabin, grasping with both hands a large bowl from which a piece had been broken. As he appeared there was a sudden commotion, which spread quickly to the remote parts of the clearing and to the undergrowth beyond, and chickens of all sizes and colors came squawking toward him with wings outstretched and feet scarce touching the ground. He scattered the food among them.

After the chickens had, with impartiality and many admonitions to behave, received all the food from the hand of the old man, he then sought a plank where the sunshine fell warm and unbroken and closed his eyes and spread out his trembling arms that he might enjoy it to the full.

There were sounds of dishes being washed in the cabin, the swish of a broom, the passing of a hot iron across newly starched cloth and above all the hubbub of eager, expectant, joyful voices. The day was not an ordinary one; that was evident.

A hoe leaned against the cabin, a mattock lay upon the ground near the door, a saw still pressed its jagged teeth into the trunk of a half sawn branch at the meager wood pile--all these implements of toil as they had been left when work was over the night before.

No one came to resume work this morning, so it was evident that something out of the ordinary was going on.

Presently a dusky young face appeared at the window.

"Hey, gran'paw!" a shrill, childish voice called. "Mammy say fo' yo' to come in fo' yo' clean shut. Yo' gwine dress up fus' case yo' wa'k slower."

Grandpaw moved toward the cabin. As he went in a troop of six pickaninies came tumbling out, all boys but one. A peremptory voice followed them.

"Now, doan yo' chilluns go fur off. Soon's yo' gran'paw's done fix yo' gwine be fix too. Now, min'."

At one end of the cabin a rosebush clambered up and about the low eaves. As though through previous understanding, the boys began to slide toward this, keeping an inquiring look upon their sister the while. But not until one of their hands reached slyly toward a freshly opened rose did she notice. Then she said:

"Stop dat, Washunton! Ain' yo' member dat mammy say all dem roses gwine be save fo' Ann' Celia's marriage?"

"But new ones done bloom arter mammy say dat," expostulated Washington petulantly. "Sides, hit's 'manicipation an' 'manicipation's more'n jes' marriage."

"I don't keer. Dat's what mammy say, an' yo' all know mammy ain' say one t'ing twice."

"Yo' gwine be telltale, Macie?" scornfully.

"No, I ain' gwine be telltale. But dat's what mammy say, an' yo' know mammy mighty sot on what she say. Yo' know dat, doan yo'?"

Washington looked doubtfully at his companions and from them back to the roses.

"Iey gwine look mighty nice on we all new clo's," he said wistfully, "an' dar's shorely too many for jes' marriage. An' dey keep openin' up all de durin' time. Mammy ain' gwine ear' fo' jes' one rose fo' we all's 'manicipation. Yo' know dat, Macie?"

Macie did not answer, and Washington went on persuasively:

"Yo' know dat two nickels I done make totin' times. Macie. Well, I's gwine spee' hit all fo' sweet stuff, an' yo'se gwine hab half. An', sides, yo' shorely look mighty fine long o' one dem roses pinned on yo' blue calico. Yo' shorely would."

Macie hesitated.

"Dar's mo' roses openin' up, yho' nuf," she said thoughtfully, "an' I don' 'low mammy'd ear' much, specially if she didn't know. An' marriage ain' nuffin to 'manicipation nohow. Den yo' say right 'bout dat rose lookin' 'pear' 'long o' my calico. Yaas, I reckon jes' one rose dat away gwine be all right; but, min' yo'n, half dat ar sweet stuff 'longs to me."

"Chilluns, chilluns! Whar yo' all be? Come, rusticate yo'se's now! Gran'paw's done fix an' gwine up de road. Yo'se to follow him. Den Mose an' me'll come 'long. We hit de road faster dan yo'll ails. Quick, now. Yo' heah me?"

Their hands were already picking the forbidden flowers, but at that call the roses fell to the ground, momentarily unheeded in the sudden consternation, then were picked up and hurriedly concealed about their tattered clothing. As they shuffled round the corner Washington slipped in behind his companions. But in his trepidation he neglected entirely to conceal the rose. The sharp eyes at the door caught sight of the protruding stem.

"Wha' dat yo' got inside yo' shut, Washunton?" she demanded. Her gaze swept over the guilty faces; then she stepped outside and walked deliberately round the corner of the cabin to the rosebush. There were telltale leaves and bits of broken branches upon the ground.

"So yo' didn't keer nuffin fo' what I 'spressly ordered," she said at length, with mingled regret and reproach in her voice. "Now I's gwine tell yo' some'n, chillun. De roses ain' much, 'cep'n' dat I say not tech dem. Dat make all de dif'rence. Now dey's gwine lose yo' de 'manicipation. Yo' pap an' me an' Macie'll go to de doin's, an' yo' ails will stay right hyeh by de cabin all de 'durin' day, an' Washunton he's gwine chop wood. Come, Macie, an' be fix up."

But Macie hung back doubtfully, a mighty struggle evidently going on in her small body. Suddenly she raised her head.

"I done stole one o' dem roses, too, mammy," she faltered.

"Wha' dat, Macie? An' I 'pend 'spressly on yo' to look out fo' de od-ders. Oh, chille, chille!"

Her mother spoke slowly, and Macie's head dropped still lower.

"I's sorry, mammy," she said, scarce above a whisper, "but I did stole one. Dat's de trufe. I's badder'n dey is, case I was to look out fo' dem."

"Yas, yo'se badder'n dey is," her mother assented, "an' I reckon yo' got to be punish wuss. Dar's dat bag o' corn dat ain' crack yet. Yo' bring hit out hyeh an' poun' on hit all day. Yo' pap an' me'll go to 'manicipation by curse's. An', min', all o' yo'," impressively, "if da's any goin's on while we's off dar's gwine be mo' punishment tomorrer."

The children made no reply, but stood about sullenly until the old people had disappeared up the road toward Marianna, where the "doings" were to be held.

"I ain' gwine do a stitch o' wuk all de 'durin' day," Washington declared defiantly. "If de wood git chopped hit jes' chop hitse'f."

His companions grumbled their approval, and one of them kicked viciously at the hoe which stood near him.

"An' all dis fo' some no 'count ole roses," Washington went on irritably, then: "Wha' yo' gwine to do dar, Macie? Yo' ain' gwine to wuk shorely?"

"Yass, I be," sturdily. "I's gwine poun' dis corn, jes' like mammy say. An' I's pow'ful 'shamed o' myse'f, I is. Mebbe de roses ain' no 'count, but dat ain' de p'int. Mammy say not tech dem. An'--an' mammy's been mighty good to we ails. Yo'se know dat."

Yes, they knew, but not one of them was ready to admit it just yet. So they lay there, scowling and digging their heels and toes into the sand and making jeering remarks at Macie. But she worked quietly on, and at length they rose uneasily, one by one, and found places in the window and inside the cabin, where they swung their legs and continued to scowl.

But all the time they were thinking, and at length, in seeming desperation, Washington pushed his way between the row on the window seat and dropped to the ground.

"I declar', hit's sights easier to wuk dan to sot hyer 'long o' sech grumblers," he snorted. "I's gwine into dat wood pile jes' fo' de change."

Presently one of the leg swingers on the window seat slipped to the ground and picked up the hoe.

"An' I 'low dat sweet rater patch has mo' fun fo' me dan dis crowd," he muttered as he moved away.

One by one the others thought of some occupation that was "mo' fun" and shuffled in search of it. And, curiously enough, as they set to work the scowls and grumbling and discontent disappeared, and it was not long before most of them were whistling or singing. Never in the history of the clearing had there been greater industry nor, toward the end of the day, greater cheerfulness. When the old people returned there was a crowding line to meet them with eager accounts of the day's work and with embarrassed apologies for the disobedience of the morning.

"Laws-a-mussy me!" ejaculated Macie, with smiles that were very near to tears. "What chilluns dey is? An' all dem taters head, an' all dat even poun'd, an' all dat udder wuk done! My, my, jes' to think! An' hit's 'manicipation day an' ticks and off to de doin's. But I ain' 'fraid yo' chilluns!" softly. "I's done got pointers to yo' ails, an' candy an' raisins an' gader oranges. Hyer, rememb' p'kade after package from her precious poekets. "Now, yo' ails runed an' hab a 'manicipation jes' by yo'se's. An' tomorrer yo' all kin go usin'."

As she turned and entered the cabin she murmured to herself softly: "What chilluns dey is? What chilluns dey is?"

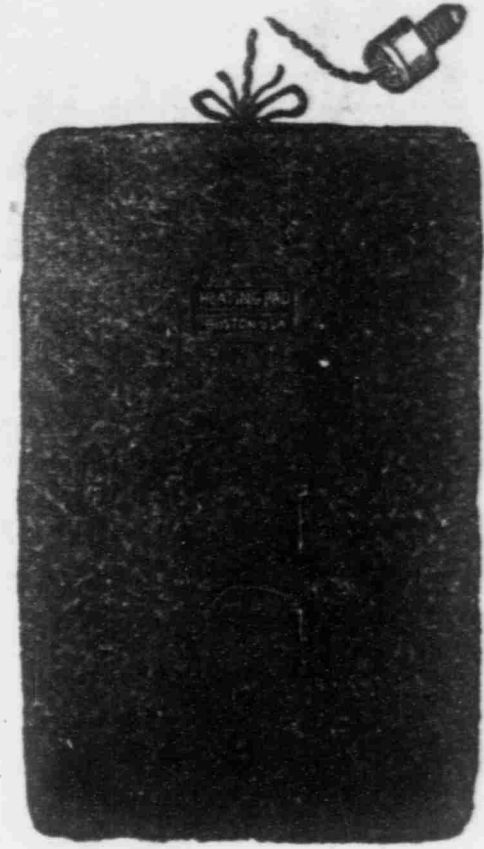

Horses and Rain.

Day after day the lover of animals had stopped to pet the baker's horse, which happened to be hitched at a certain corner at the hour when the animal lover passed, and the horse apparently appreciated the attention. But one day his mood changed, and he snapped viciously. "Well, of all things!" exclaimed the animal lover. "He never did that before."

"Probably because you never petted him before in rainy weather," said the man who knows a little bit about horses. "As you value your ten fingers and general safety of limb, don't get familiar with a horse when he is soaked with rain. No matter how peaceable his disposition, the rain makes him cranky, and there is no telling how he will take unsolicited fondling!"--Exchange.
